YOUR DRAFT. YOUR TEAM. YOUR SEASON. LET'S BUILD.

Build Your Lineup. Get Ahead of the Season.

Fall is right around the corner, football is back, and another busy stretch of construction is underway across the Pacific Northwest.

Just like a good fantasy team, a successful job takes the right lineup, a solid game plan, and a little preparation before kickoff. This month, we're focused on helping our customers get ahead of the season—whether that means adding the right equipment to your jobsite, preparing your crews for changing weather, or making sure the products you depend on are available when you need them.

... And speaking of adding talent to the roster, we've got a big new addition at Bigfoot.

Bigfoot Construction Supply is proud to now offer Little Giant Ladder Systems!

Little Giant has spent more than 50 years developing climbing solutions around safety, versatility, and solving real problems for the trades. Their lineup includes multi-position and combination ladders, stepladders, extension ladders, safety cages, platforms, accessories, and more.

Whether you're an electrician, mechanical contractor, drywall contractor, general contractor, or simply need a better access solution for the jobsite, we can help you find the right Little Giant product for the application.

Get Your Fall & Winter PPE on the Depth Chart Now

Everyone in Washington knows what's coming.

That's why now is the time to start thinking about Fall and Winter PPE.

If you already know your crews are going to need rain gear, waterproof boots, gloves, high-visibility outerwear, cold-weather gear, or other seasonal PPE, give us a shout now.

We'd rather bring it in ahead of time and have your crews ready than wait until everyone in the region is looking for the same products and potential manufacturer lead times start becoming a factor.

Build Your Fall Starting Lineup

- Rain Gear — Keep crews dry when the Northwest weather returns.
- Cold-Weather Gloves — Maintain protection without sacrificing the ability to work.
- Waterproof Footwear — Get ahead of wet jobsites and long days outside.
- Hi-Vis Outerwear — Stay visible as daylight hours get shorter.
- Layering & Cold-Weather PPE — Prepare crews for those cold mornings before winter officially arrives.

Already know what you're going to need? Send us your list.

We'll work with you to identify the right products, quantities, sizes, and availability—and start bringing material in before the weather turns.

Draft your PPE early. Build your lineup. Stay ready.

Michael Gomez

This month we're celebrating six years with Michael Gomez, one of the people who has helped shape Bigfoot into what it is today.

As the first full-time member of Bigfoot's Inside Sales team, Mike brought something incredibly valuable with him: experience.

Mike came up through the construction supply industry and has worked just about every side of the business—warehouse, delivery, front counter, inside sales, and everything in between. That experience is why customers know when they're working with Mike, they're talking to somebody who understands the products, understands the industry, and understands what it takes to get an order across the finish line.

His approach has always been simple: over-deliver for the customer.

Whether it's finding the right product, chasing down an order, getting competitive pricing, or making sure material arrives when it's supposed to, Mike takes pride in giving customers the confidence that they're taken care of.

He's also one of the people who can keep everyone laughing and somehow remain the calm in the storm when construction gets crazy.

Mike has been an integral part of Bigfoot's growth, and we're incredibly appreciative of the commitment, experience, and personality he's brought to the team over the last six years.

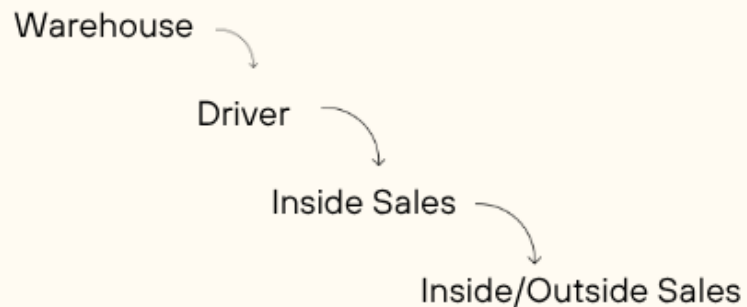

Congratulations on 6 years, Mike!

Chris Smith

We're also celebrating three years with Chris Smith, whose path at Bigfoot might be one of the best examples of what it means to be willing to learn, adapt, and jump into the hot seat.

Chris came to Bigfoot with no previous construction supply experience and quickly started climbing the depth chart.

At every stop, Chris has taken pride in learning quickly and proving that he can get the job done.

In construction supply, being able to adapt is the name of the game—and Chris has shown time and again that he's willing to grab the bull by the horns when something needs to get done.

Our customers have seen Chris in virtually every role. Whether he's behind the counter, answering the phone, making a delivery, visiting a jobsite, or helping solve a problem, they know they're dealing with somebody who is going to work his tail off to make sure they're satisfied.

Chris is the kind of teammate who's willing to put on whatever hat the team needs that day.

That's an incredibly valuable quality in our business, and we're excited to see where he takes it next.

Congratulations on 3 years, Chris!
